

PROTEST FORCES HALE OFF NU CAMPUS

Chicago Tribune - January 22, 2000

Matthew Hale , leader of the white supremacist group World Church of the Creator, was led away Friday from the edge of Northwestern University's Evanston campus in protective police custody after nearly 100 protesters angrily demanded he leave.

Three protesters, none of whom is a student, were arrested on charges of disorderly conduct by campus police.

Hale went to the campus to recruit members to his East Peoria-based organization. The group attracted national attention in July after a former member, Ben Smith, went on a shooting spree in which two people were killed, including former Northwestern basketball coach Ricky Byrdsong.
