TEARS and boos filled Federation Square in Melbourne this morning as the Government issued a historic apology to indigenous Australians.

Thousands of people crowded into Federation Square today to watch Prime Minister Kevin Rudd deliver the apology to Abos.

An emotional crowd waved flags and banners and cheered when Mr Rudd appeared on the big screen.

Many people were wrapped in Aboriginal flags or held banners reading sorry.

As the Prime Minister said the words I am sorry, the crowd erupted in applause and cheers.

Some women dabbed at their eyes with tissues while others hugged.

When Mr Rudd finally sat, he received a standing ovation.

It's scary that people like you have the ability to broadcast your ignorance. What did you do that was so special that allowed you to be born to what I'm assuming were white parents?

Nice to see the brave and courageous soldiers of peace and equality making the threats on this channel... No content or ability or argue against the videos, just threats and abuse.

I'd much rather a racist yet intelligent Australia, than see a multicultural and illiterate one in the coming future!
